PENNSYLVANIA, OHIO, INDIANA, AND IOWA.

As an evidence of the lack of special interest in the elections this fall, we premise that it half requires occurred to a quarter of our readers that an election in four great States takes place to-morrow; but it is nevertheless true that Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Iowa elect Congressional, legislative, and county tickets on Tuesday, and State tickets the first of the first named. Pennsylvania will elect twenty-four Congressmen, Ohio nineteen, Indiana eleven, and Iowa six. Total, sixty, or one-quarter of the next House of Representatives. The canvass as a whole has been languidly conducted in all of those States, by both parties, and the probabilities are that a comparatively light vote will be cast, and a light vote always results in a Republican majority. Republicans, because the Democratic party is composed of a material more readily aroused, fuller of voting, less reflecting, and requiring less effort to get to the polls. The more intelligent and independent as the latter rank and file of a party may be, the more difficult it is to preserve party discipline, or to infuse partisan enthusiasm at elections where no vital issues appear to be at stake. And this is exactly the case with the Republican party. On great occasions it is perfectly irresistible, and with the force of the tide or hurricane, sweeps everything before it. But when it subsides into a torpor of indifference, and allows its opponents frequently to steal a march, and score by surprise the fruits of its hard-won victories.

It is, therefore, that we are prepared to report on Wednesday morning more or less losses of offices in the States which vote to-morrow.

In Pennsylvania, the Republicans are divided into factions in several Congressional Districts, which may result in the defeat of three or four members of Congress. By running two candidates, the chances are good for losing a Republican member in the Second (Philadelphia), and the Twentieth, and the Twenty-second, and Twenty-third (Pittsburgh) Districts, notwithstanding the Republican majority in each ranges from two to five thousand. The Democrats carried nine, and the Republicans fifteen districts two years ago. We rather anticipate that each party will elect about twelve to-morrow—the Republicans losing in consequence of factional discussions and periodical apathy. The Republican majority in the State in 1868 was only 9,677.

The Ohio canvass has been conducted with unusual earnestness and turpidity, except in "spots" made lively by a bolt in the Republican ranks. The Republicans only carried the State last fall by 7,500 majority, which affords a very slim margin for losses in a State that polls half a million of votes. The Democrats carried several of the districts that elected Republican members of Congress in 1868. Thus, Allen carried both the Cincinnati districts, the Sixth (or Garfield), and the Columbus and Wayne districts. The most lively fight in the State is going on between Schenck and Campbell, in the Dayton district. They are both able and vigorous stumpers, and both obnoxious to large segments of their respective parties—Schenck on account of what is called the "salary grab" bugbear, and Campbell by reason of his ultra Know-Nothing record. The revenue reform Republicans find it tough work to swallow the former, and the Irish and Germans equally a poisonous pill to gulp down in favor of the latter. Pretty, noisy, and puerile, and we have not the slightest idea which will come out ahead, as the district is evenly balanced, politically, and each candidate about equally popular with his own side. Schenck is known the hardest stumper in Congress, even quickest. They are utterly unsparing of each other's feelings and character, and with no almost lost to deceive view in assurance of smoke and mud.

The next most lively combat is in the Columbus district, between Pendleton and Jewett, who are the ablest men running on either side in the State. They are large and attractive audiences, and are both making their canvass as becomes gentlemen. The district is very close, having been carried by the Republicans in 1867, only by 108 majority. But we rather look for a Shellabarger's election.

John A. Bingham's was carried last fall by the Republicans only by 53 majority, and many Republicans have grown tired of him, still the chances are picked of him as Representative. His opponent is not industrial, strong, or popular with the people, so that Bingham may again squeeze by the skin of his teeth. The Cincinnati district, we presume, will be lost by the raising of two Republicans. This is the district the President was born in, and he is trying to save it, but will hardly be able. The Republicans will carry one of the Cincinnati districts, and the Democrats the other, and let it pass. The Republicans will carry the State, and elect at least seven out of the eleven Congressmen—the same majority by which the State was carried

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—A communication of the Secretary of the Treasury, in response to a resolution of the House of Representatives, calling for information relative to the payment of the Texas indemnity, has been received by the Clerk of the House, and will be taken to-morrow.

NEW YORK.

[Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.]

MONEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Gold opened at 111¼, declined to 111, and closed at 111¼. Clearings, $20,000,000. Money is easier, partially the result of the heavy payments of the Treasury yesterday, by Act. 3rd Assistant Treasurer Hillhouse, $1,000,000 of bonds were regularly negotiated at 4.50 a per cent, the discount general rendering it.

SILVER.

Gold was strongest, in consequence of the decline in bonds. In London, silver is the favorite of the metals, and is sought for by the Bank of England.

COTTON.

The prices ranged from ——— to 16½c. There will be active demand for the new crop, and the latest paid for the use of the Bank, until Monday, were 14-16, 1-16@15-16 of one per cent. The quota of the Southern dwelling-house has been filled.

EXCHANGE.

Foreign exchange was firm, $11 and closed at $11.10@11.11 for sight and 10.91@10.92 for 60 days.

COTTON SEED.

There was a liberal supply of cotton bills offered, at 28½c, 30½, and ———.

GOVERNMENT BONDS

were inactive, and steady, at 112@112½.

STOCKS.

Stocks dull, and a moderate volume of business. The only fluctuations of importance were in Hudson River, Rock Island & St. Joseph, in which there was a steady, severe buying movement.

MONEY AT INTERIOR.

The bank statement to-day is unfavorable, there being a decrease both in deposits and legal reserves.

IMPORTS.

The total imports at New York for the week ending are valued at $3,034,655, of which $1,949,488 represent silk goods.

WHEAT.

The receipts of wheat to-day were, corn, 200,000 bushels. In consequence of these large arrivals there was a weak feeling in the market, which led to active business and large purchases for export. The scarcity of the finer grades of breadstuffs gave firmness to that staple.

THE CHOLERA.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Returns of the cholera, almost entirely confined to the population of the city at 100,000. Out of 16,000 residents in certain district, 1,000 cases were cured, 4,000 of them Dutch and Germans. The Swede Hospital, which was, at the spring, the scene of the most terrible ravages of the disease, is now entirely free from it. The Fahnestock Hospital, of the same character, with 170 patients, is also free. The Board of Health say all the districts, 160 cases were cured in every 24 hours, and a total of 600 cases per week is a fair estimate.

CONTESTED WILL CASE.

The examination relative to the will of the late Benjamin R. Taylor, the well-known merchant, who died suddenly in this city, Mrs. Howland was begun yesterday before Surrogate Hutchings.

LIGHT PUNISHMENT OF MURDERERS.

A bill has been introduced in the Legislature by Messrs. Bartlett and Bedford, vester-cap, fixed the punishment of murder in the first degree at imprisonment for life in the State Prison for Women, instead of death. The present punishment for murder in the first degree is death, but the law is rarely executed. Under the new bill, the murderer would be confined in the State Prison for Women, and would be subject to the same discipline as other prisoners.

NAVAL MOVEMENTS.

Affairs at the Navy Yard are now quite active. On the 18th, Rear Admiral Godon is to relieve Rear Admiral Goldsborough of the command of the fleet. The iron-clad monitors in command at the Navy Yard are to be put in fighting order, and the vessel in which the Secretary of the Navy visited Wachusett, to the fleet for two months past, is undergoing repairs. The Navy Yard will be made an active business and large purchases for export. The scarcity of the finer grades of breadstuffs gave firmness to that staple.

Hair Jewelry.

There has been a tremendous rumpus, through newspapers, on the subject of woman's dress, and it seems to overdress, and that they wear too much jewelry. upon the promenade, thereby incurring the odium of bad taste, and the dubitorious epithet of a gaudy butterfly. However, as the average model American woman being a supposing creature of meek demeanor, and retiring manner, dressed exclusively in articles of home manufacture, content for her own tireless hands, her jewelry, if she has any, being safely at home, wapped in chamois leather, waiting for some such event as a silver wedding, or centennial ball, to bring it out. Not till then may her pearls glimmer or her diamonds flash, in the public gaze. "It is bad taste," cries the Censor "to wear diamonds on the street," forgetting that the "street" is the only recreation half our American women have; that bad for that they rarely go to dwell, and how up through their own chimneys; that the family sitting-room or nursery would be their only masculorum, and that everybody's diamonds would be worn at home in forbidden places. Censor is well enough aware of all this, but he has something to write, and he goes in the way of finding it. Another new practice is two long braids hanging from under the chignon, down the back, at the ends with gold coins, or gold ornaments. This is not very far from gilthood, have quite generally adopted this style, but it is not becoming, and is very unlike the graceful flowing face of indoors in their toilet, who can always find something appropriate for the occasion.

Chignons for full dress of a coarse wavy character, are worn by the most lovely blonde, who tosses beside her aristocratic brunette, who has only her own luxuriant hair, in the quantity of the fashionable hair dealer.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP MATCH.

From the New York Sun, Oct. 8.

Long evening, agreeable ball was fixed with a most interesting item of all kinds, who were attracted out of by 10 o'clock. For the billiard championship between Maurice F. Daly and Alexander Hilliard, of Brooklyn. The last contest between these two men, which took place in the Cooper Institute, in this city, on the 31st of May, in the Eighth Avenue Rooms, in Brooklyn, and resulted in favor of Daly, who won the game by 500 points to 400. The match was for the championship of the United States, and for $1,000 a side. Hilliard was the champion, having won it in a previous match against Daly, and he was desirous of retaining the honor. Daly was equally desirous of winning it, and he was confident that he could do so. The result of the match proved that Daly was right in his confidence, for he won it by a score of 500 points to 400. The game was played in the Eighth Avenue Rooms, in Brooklyn, and was witnessed by a large number of persons, who were attracted to the place by the announcement that the match would be played there. The game was commenced at 8 o'clock, and was finished at 1:30 o'clock in the morning. The table used was one of Phelan & Collender's, and the balls were the ivory ones used in the game of pool. The game was 500 points up, and was played in the usual manner. The following is the score:
